

This Issue and Why it Matters

Improving the quality of services for infants, toddlers, and their families requires a focus on their unique needs. The articles in this issue of the Journal explore a variety of elements that improve services for young children and their families:

- The technique of “Skilled Dialogue” provides early interventionists with a framework and supporting strategies to consider when forming and sustaining partnerships with caregivers in EI, especially when navigating topics or conversations that might be perceived as uncomfortable or difficult.
- How daily caregiving practices, such as diapering, can be transformed from a rushed routine to an opportunity to enhance child well-being and involvement.
- How staff training can build capacity to effectively deliver trauma-informed intervention in community-based settings.
- How an age-appropriate diagnostic classification, DC:0-5™: Diagnostic Classification of Mental Health and Developmental Disorders of Infancy and Early Childhood (ZERO TO THREE, 2016) as a standard of practice can be an effective strategy for improving access to services and supports and improving outcomes for children.
- Considerations of the use of media by very young children, and the importance of maximizing human-to-human interactions for healthy brain development.
- The power of professional partnerships when staff members join forces to create strong relationships on behalf of young children and families jointly served by their organizations.

The ZERO TO THREE Journal also continually striving for quality improvement in our efforts to meet the professional development needs of our readers. To that end, we have initiated an effort to connect each article to the ZERO TO THREE Competencies for Prenatal to Age 5 Professionals, a model that was developed to strengthen prenatal to age 5 (P-5) professionals’ capacity to collaborate and coordinate services on behalf of young children and their families. The Competencies provide a consensus of eight domains of knowledge, skills, and attitudes necessary for responsive, comprehensive, and collaborative services and work among the professionals working in five identified fields or service sectors. In each article in the Journal, you will notice a box at the bottom of the first page that identifies the P-5 competency domains most strongly supported by the article. You can find an explanation and a graphic of the icons on page 4, as well as online at www.zerotothree.org/p-5. The P-5 Competencies Model is now linked to every source of professional development that ZERO TO THREE offers.

Stefanie Powers, Editor
spowers@zerotothree.org

ZERO TO THREE. (2016). DC:0-5™: Diagnostic classification of mental health and developmental disorders of infancy and early childhood. Washington, DC: Author.

The ZERO TO THREE Journal was founded in 1980

Sally Provence, Editor 1980–1985
Jeree Pawl, Editor 1985–1992
Emily Fenichel, Editor 1992–2006

Editor
Stefanie Powers

Production Manager
Jennifer Moon Li

Designer
Cassandra Olson

Design Services
K Art & Design, Inc.

Executive Director
Matthew E. Melmed

ZERO TO THREE Board of Directors

Robert M. Chang	Lisa Mennet
Abel Covarrubias	Michelle Meyercord
Lia Dean	Catherine E. Monk
Robert Emde	Brian A. Napack
Chandra Ghosh Ippen	Michael R. Olenick
Walter Gilliam	Rizwan Shah
Mary Margaret Gleason	Paul G. Spicer
Brenda Jones Harden	Eugene Stein
Donna Levin	Mindy Stein
John Love	Barbara Thompson
Tammy Mann	Ross Thompson
Matthew E. Melmed	Ginger Ward
Andrew N. Meltzoff	Marcel Wright
	Charles H. Zeanah

Directors Emeriti

J. Ronald Lally	Arnold J. Sameroff
Samuel J. Meisels	Jack P. Shonkoff
Kyle D. Pruett	Edward Zigler

Founding Members

T. Berry Brazelton	Peter B. Neubauer
Selma Fraiberg	Robert A. Nover
Stanley I. Greenspan	Sally Provence
J. Ronald Lally	Julius B. Richmond
Bernard Levy	Albert J. Solnit
Reginald S. Lourie	Leon J. Yarrow

The views expressed in this material represent the opinions of the respective authors and are intended for education and training to help promote a high standard of care by professionals. Publication of this material does not constitute an endorsement by ZERO TO THREE of any view expressed herein, and ZERO TO THREE expressly disclaims any liability arising from any inaccuracy or misstatement, or from use of this material in contravention of rules, regulations, or licensing requirements.